

For parents and carers
with learning difficulties

Simple conversations to keep your child safe from abuse

NSPCC

EVERY CHILDHOOD IS WORTH FIGHTING FOR

Help for you

We help parents and support workers talk to their children about staying safe.

It is part of our job to help stop abuse happening to any child.

This booklet will give you some advice on how you can help to keep your child safe from sexual abuse.

What is Talking PANTS?

Talking PANTS is a simple way to help keep children safe from abuse.

It teaches children that their body belongs to them and that they have a right to say no.

And it teaches children that they should tell an adult if they are upset or worried about anything.

They can even talk to Childline. Childline is a free service for children to talk about their worries. This is really helpful if they find it difficult to talk to an adult they know.

There is an easy way to remember the rules.

Just remember the word PANTS.

Each letter in the word PANTS gives you one of the rules.

Privates are private

Always remember your body belongs to you

No means no

Talk about secrets that upset you

Speak up, someone can help

Spend some time with your child and help them learn those simple rules.

You can start off by having a simple talk with your child about keeping safe. You can go into more detail when you and your child are happy.

The next few pages will show you how to teach your child the PANTS rules.

P is for
Privates are private

Anything covered by underwear is private. No one should ask to see or touch parts of the body covered by underwear.

In some situations, people such as doctors or nurses may need to touch your child's private parts. They should always ask your child first.

Explain to your child that this is OK, but that those people should always explain why and ask first.

A is for
Always remember your body belongs to you

Your child should know their body belongs to them, and no one else.

No one has the right to make your child do anything with their body that makes them feel uncomfortable.

If anyone tries, they should tell someone that they trust.

This might be a support worker, a doctor, a parent or a family member.

N is for
No means no

Your child has the right to say NO. Even to a family member or someone they love.

Sometimes you may need to say no to your child to help keep them safe. It helps if you can explain why.

If a child feels happy to say no to their own family, they are more likely to say no to others.

T is for
Talk about secrets that upset you

Explain to your child that they should talk about stuff that makes them worried or upset.

Explain that an adult they trust will listen, and be able to help.

Tell them it doesn't have to be a family member. It can be a teacher or a friend's parent – or even Childline.

S is for
Speak up, someone can help

If your child feels sad, worried or frightened they can talk to an adult they trust. This person will listen and can help stop whatever's making them upset.

Remind your child that whatever the problem, it is not their fault and they will not get into trouble.

Your child might want to talk to you, a teacher, an older brother or sister or a friend's parent. It can even be Childline.

Here are some questions that you might want answers to. The answers are explained after the questions.

Do I have to talk to my child about sex?

You do not have to talk about sex or keeping safe from sexual abuse, unless you feel your child is ready.

If your child asks questions about sex it can sometimes be a good time to talk.

It shows that you are open to having conversations and will help your child feel happy that they can come to you whenever they are worried.

What if my child says something that worries me?

If your child says something that worries you in any way, get some advice. You can talk to anyone that you trust.

You can get advice from the NSPCC on 0808 800 5000. We are here 24 hours a day to give advice and support.

If it's nothing to worry about, you can feel better knowing that you have checked it out.

Remember, it is probably a big relief for your child to be able to talk to you. Whatever you think and feel, it is not something to be frightened of – we can support you and help you.

You can find lots more information and support about talking PANTS at nspcc.org.uk/pants

How to contact us for more information

You can visit our website nspcc.org.uk

Or you can call us on 0808 800 5000

You can also call Mencap Direct on 0808 808 1111. Lines are open 9am to 5pm, Monday to Friday

Your child can call Childline on 0800 1111

Or visit the Childline website childline.org.uk

This version was adapted from our original parents' guide, with help from Mencap.

Childline is a service provided by the NSPCC.
© 2013 NSPCC – all rights reserved. Registered charity England and Wales 216401. Scotland SC037717.
Illustration by Jamie Nash. J20161202.

